Goals

- To model a transmitter-receiver system experiencing timing errors
- To estimate the output Probability Density Function given input values and system characteristics
- To determine the optimum decision region boundaries for given input values and system characteristics
- To characterise the relationship between system non-idealities and optimum decision region boundaries